Mountain Home is served by U.S. Highway 62/412 and Arkansas State Highways 5 and 201. The city is served by Baxter County Airport, which sits on 338 acres on State Highway 126 near Midway. It features a paved, lighted 5,000-foot runway and a 6,800- square-foot terminal. The airport has 46 hangers. The local Chapter of the Civil Air Patrol has 50 volunteers and one on-site aircraft. It provides training for cadets and emergency assistance throughout northern Arkansas.

The city operates under the mayor-city council form of government. The Mayor serves a four-year term, while members of the City Council serve two-year terms. The City Council consists of eight aldermen whose current terms will expire December 31, 2014. Mayor David Osmon’s term will expire December 31, 2014. The current city budget is $25.3 million.

Baxter County is served by Baxter Regional Medical Center. The hospital has a total of 268 beds and serves patients from 14 counties. The hospital has a staff of over 100 physicians representing 33 specialties, 9 dentists, approximately 1400 employees and more than 500 active volunteers. It provides services ranging from Home Health to Open Heart Surgery. Baxter Regional Medical Center also has four community houses; the Peitz Cancer Support House; the Schliemans Center for Women's Health Education; Mruk Family Center on Aging; and the Reppell Diabetes Learning Center. All of these houses provide outreach programs to the surrounding community with over 95% of the services provided for free.

Baxter County is served by three school districts: Cotter, Norfolk and Mountain Home schools.

The Cotter School District covers thirty-five square miles in Western Baxter County, including the cities of Cotter, Gassville and the outlying area. Cotter Schools provide a comprehensive academic educational program for students in grades kindergarten through twelve that complies with the Standards for Accreditation as established by the Arkansas State Board of Education. The enrollment for Cotter School District is approximately 648 students, 70% of which are eligible for free or reduced priced meals. An additional 40 students are enrolled in the ABC and Head Start pre-school programs at Cotter. Cotter Schools employs 59 certified staff, 42 support staff, and runs 8 bus routes. Student test scores have continued to improve over recent years, specifically in elementary math, elementary science, Jr. High math, algebra, and career and technical education. Results of the Arkansas Benchmark Examination of the 2011-2012 school year showed Cotter students to be at or above the state average in all but one math and literacy exams, and above the state average on all but one science exam. Students who are not proficient on benchmark exams are provided remedial instruction. Cotter Public Schools offers an opportunity for a strong academic education with Advanced Placement offerings in all four of the core academic disciplines. The graduating seniors of 2012 were eligible for approximately $1.2 million in academic scholarships for post-secondary education programs. The junior high school Governor's Academic Quiz Bowl Competition team from Cotter finished first in the region for the 2011-2012 school year. The schools also offer a variety of extra-curricular and athletic programs that help develop well-rounded students. The district's FBLA and FFA chapters are very competitive in district and state competitions each year. The Amanda Gist Elementary School has been recognized as a "Break the Mold" school due to the high academic performance of its students on state benchmark exams, and the district's facilities have been deemed to be well-maintained and in overall good condition by the Arkansas Division of School Facilities and Transportation.

Cotter Schools are leaders in North Central Arkansas in the field of technology. Cotter High School is the first school in the Twin Lakes Region to provide each student with his/her own technology device. Beginning with the 2012-13 school year all students in grades 7-12 were provided with an iPad 2 and all buildings within the district are equipped with WIFI capabilities. The elementary school currently has approximately one iPad for every three students and that number is increasing each year.

The Norfolk school district is located in southern Baxter County and serves Norfolk and the outlying areas. The Norfolk School is North Central Accredited.

The Mountain Home School District Mission Statement is "Committed to Excellence in Education, Every Student-Every Time”. The Mountain Home School District is the largest in the area and is fully accredited by North Central Association. In December 2011, the district became accredited by AdvancED. Schools must apply and meet rigorous standards to become a member of this association. There are seven campuses in the district, including a separate kindergarten building, a high school, junior high, middle school, two elementary sites, and the Guy Berry College and Career Academy, an alternative learning environment. The Mountain Home High School Career Academies’ learning model is built around rigorous and relevant curriculum that effectively prepares students for college and careers. The model focuses on collaboration among school, business, and community. The high school received national attention when all three academies were designated model academies by the National Career Academy Coalition. The district maintains the highest educational goals for the children of the community. Mountain Home students are in the upper 20% of academic achievement in the State of Arkansas

Arkansas State University-Mountain Home Campus continues to experience growth in scholarship distributions, budget, and number of full-time employees. The school’s budget for 2012-2013 is $10,353,000. The fall enrollment for 2012 was 1,413 students, which is virtually the same as the fall of 2011. Through their affiliation with the main campus in Jonesboro, it is possible to earn a bachelor and master’s degree at ASU Mountain Home. There are 227 students enrolled in the Jonesboro program attending classes at the Mountain Home Campus.

The Mountain Home area enjoys a well-balanced economy consisting of six main components:
